Single Object Still Life

Still Life – Find a subject

Your subject MAY be from another painting that you wish to imitate. It must be of sufficient complexity that you will be challenged in your rendering of it, but not so hard that you can't do it. Ask me if confused.

Select something with obvious differences in value (lights and darks) to make your job easier

Portrait - Find a subject

You can choose any picture to work with, provided it is good enough quality that you can see all the necessary details.

6 inch x 9 inch box (inch grid)

Double the size = 18 x 12 inch painting paper (2 inch grid)

You may use the grid technique if necessary

Straight on shots of the face work the best if you're a beginner. Everyone can make a recognizable portrait, however some people are naturally talented at it. Maybe you're one!
